

Schubert: String Quartet in G major D887, Quartettsatz in C minor D703

This is a commanding release....the Wihan's unmannered playing unfolds naturally... as a consequence the performances gain an expressive power that lets Schubert speak for himself. An outstanding release.

International Record Review

Recommended

A tribute to the art of ensemble playing..... It is all impeccably played.

The Strad

This is playing of the highest quality from the Czech quartet. Their tempo for the opening movement is unusually broad, which allows you to savour to the full the harmonic richness of this extraordinary music.

The Sunday Times

Assured performances.....fiercely committed playing.... The strong and positive Wihan certainly deserve to be heard.

Michael Cookson MusicWeb

If this is one of the finest examples of Schubert's mastery as a composer of chamber music, so too the performance of the Wihan Quartet is worthy of that mastery. Aided by one of the best and most atmospheric recordings imaginable, this disc can be welcomed with the utmost enthusiasm.

Terry Barfoot MusicWeb

These are excellent studio accountscaught with excellent sound balancetheir playing is impeccable and virtually faultless whether live or from studio.

Musical Pointers